John Kerr enters his 11th season as the head coach of the Duke men's soccer team. Kerr, inducted into the Duke Sports Hall of Fame in 2004, replaced longtime coach John Rennie, who spent 29 seasons at the helm of the Blue Devil program. Under the guidance of Kerr, the Blue Devils have advanced to five NCAA Tournaments and to the round of 16 in 2009, collected nine NSCAA All-America awards, and a Hermann Trophy winner.

Kerr and the Blue Devils come into 2018 looking to add to the fantastic 2017 campaign that saw Duke return to the NCAA Tournament as the No. 6 seed, the first time it had been seeded since 2006. Overall, Duke finished the season with a 13-4-3 overall record and took second in the Coastal Division and fourth overall in the ACC. The six-game improvement from a year ago matched the best one-year turnaround in Duke history, while the 13 wins are the second-most under Kerr.

Headlining the turnaround for the Blue Devils was a veteran group with Brian White pacing the offense and Markus Fjortoft and Carter Manley anchoring the defense. The trio garnered All-ACC and All-Region recognition, with White earning All-America honors. He was the first Blue Devil All-American since 2013 and the ninth player under Kerr to garner the distinction.

The Blue Devils advanced to the NCAA Third Round before falling in heartbreaking fashion in penalty kicks to Fordham. The top moments in 2017 included being ranked for eight straight weeks and finishing 13th in the final poll, beating No. 10 Georgetown on the road and shutting out No. 13 Virginia 1-0 at home.

The 2016 season was full of ups and downs with Duke finishing the year with a 7-8-2 overall record. Brian White was the team's top scorer, while rookies Suniel Veerakone and Max Moser shined in the midfield to earn All-ACC Freshman team honors.

Kerr's ninth season was a roller coaster year that saw the Blue Devils finish 10-7-2 with four of the losses coming by a single goal. Zach Mathers highlighted the 2015 team with a career-best 24 points from eight goals and eight assists. Mathers went on to become the sixth Blue Devil to be drafted in Major League Soccer SuperDraft.

In 2015, the first year of the Atlantic and Coastal Divisions for ACC men's soccer, Duke finished third in the Coastal Division with a 4-4-0 ACC mark and 9-9-1 record overall. Highlighted by a 2-1 comeback victory over North Carolina, the Blue Devils defeated NC State in the ACC Tournament first round before falling to No. 1 Syracuse in the quarterfinal round. Senior Sean Davis led the Blue Devils on and off the field as the ACC Midfielder of the Year. He was tops on the team and in the ACC in assists with 10 and earned first team recognition on Top Drawer Soccer's Best XI squad. Markus Fjortoft helped anchor the Duke backline and earned All-ACC Freshman honors with striker Cameron Moseley.

Off the field, Davis earned CoSIDA Academic All-America first team honors before signing a hometown contract with the New York Red Bulls of Major League Soccer.

The 2013 campaign was a season of growth for the Blue Devils. Duke battled to six ties, while three of its five losses came by just a single goal. Sebastian Ibeagha captured All-ACC first team and NSCAA All-America third team recognition after anchoring the defense to a 0.93 goals against average for the year. Davis, Duke's field general in the midfield, garnered All-ACC second team recognition and utility man Zach Mathers and top scorer Brody Huitema were voted to the third team.

Duke faced its fair share of challenges in the 2012 campaign with the departure of the national player of the year and MLS No. 1 pick Andrew Wenger and top assist man Christopher Tweed-Kent along with a variety of injuries. The Blue Devils finished the year 8-8-2 overall, just missing a spot in the NCAA Tournament for the first time since 2003. All eight of Duke's losses came by one goal as the Blue Devils sacrificed just 11 goals all season. Duke's 0.70 goals against average was the lowest since the 1987 season when the Blue Devils posted a 0.63 average.

Senior goalkeeper James Belshaw highlighted the 2012 season earning NSCAA All-America third team honors, while center back Sebastien Ibeagha was selected as the ACC Defensive Player of the Year to mark the fifth straight season Duke has captured a major ACC award and the second time a Blue Devil under Kerr earned the defensive MVP honor. Both were All-ACC first team selections as well.

The 2011 season featured numerous highlights. The Blue Devils finished the year 11-8-3 overall and 4-3-1 for third place in the ACC. Duke advanced to the ACC Tournament semifinal for the first time under Kerr and to the NCAA Tournament second round for the third consecutive season.

Kerr's fourth season was highlighted by the individual accolades of Wenger. The Lititz, Pa., native made history when he was voted as the ACC Offensive Player of the Year after collecting the ACC Defensive and ACC Rookie of the Year awards in the previous two seasons. Under Kerr's tutelage, Wenger went on to win the MAC Hermann Award, Duke's first national player of the year honor since 2000 and the first under Kerr. With the award, Kerr became the first Hermann Award winner to go on to coach a Hermann Award recipient.

Wenger capped off the year by being selected first in the Major League Soccer Super Draft, the first Blue Devil to be taken No. 1.

While Wenger provided many offensive highlights, the play of Belshaw and Ibeagha also garnered notice. Belshaw picked up All-ACC first team accolades, while Ibeagha was voted to the second team. Nick Palodichuk also made waves his rookie season as the only freshman to earn All-ACC second team recognition.

Awards rolled in for the Blue Devils off the field as well in 2011, as Duke landed three players - Wenger, Christopher and Daniel Tweed-Kent - on the Capital One Academic All-America squad, the first time in program history. Wenger also was selected as the ACC Men's Soccer Scholar Athlete of the Year to lead Duke's ACC-best six All-ACC Academic Team selections. Belshaw joined Wenger on the NSCAA Scholar All-America teams.

In 2010, Kerr guided Duke to the NCAA Tournament for the 24th time and for the sixth straight season. The Blue Devils compiled a 10-6-4 overall record and finished fourth in the ACC. He mentored the ACC Offensive and Defensive Players of the Year in Ryan Finley and Wenger, respectively.

In addition to the All-ACC first team selections of Finley and Wenger, senior Cole Grossman garnered All-ACC first team recognition and Belshaw picked up second team honors. The three selections on the first team were the most for Duke since 1999.

Wenger headlined the national awards for the Blue Devils in 2010, earning NSCAA All-America first team honors. Finley was voted to the All-America third team and Duke had five NSCAA All-South Region choices.

Academically, Duke was equally as successful with a league-best eight players being named to the All-ACC Academic Team. Christopher Tweed-Kent also earned a spot on the ESPN Academic All-America squad, the third such time a player under Kerr has done so.

Kerr's second season with the Blue Devils was a successful one as Duke advanced to the round of 16 in the NCAA Tournament, the farthest it had reached since doing so in 2005. Finishing with a 14-7-0 overall record, Duke garnered four more wins and scored 10 more goals than the previous season.

Under the watchful eye of Kerr, Wenger excelled in his freshman season as he was voted the ACC Rookie of the Year and to the All-ACC first team. Junior midfielder Grossman earned All-ACC second team recognition, while Finley garnered a spot on the All-ACC Freshman squad.

Five players were selected to the NSCAA All-South Region team, including Wenger capturing a first team nod. Off the field, the Blue Devils were outstanding in the classroom as 20 members of the squad posted at least a 3.0 grade point average to earn ACC Honor Roll recognition.

Duke placed a league-high eight players on the All-ACC Academic team, while senior Josh Bienenfeld was voted to the ESPN The Magazine Academic All-America first team.

In his first season as head coach, Kerr posted a 10-8-2 record in leading the Blue Devils to their 22nd NCAA Tournament appearance. He helped mentor first team All-America selection Mike Grella and NSCAA All-Region choice Darrius Barnes. Both went on to successful first seasons in the professional ranks.

Kerr, a 1987 graduate of Duke who captained the Blue Devils to the 1986 national championship, returned to his alma mater following nine seasons as the head coach at Harvard University. While with the Crimson, Kerr compiled a ledger of 81-57-13 and earned trips to the NCAA Tournament in his last two campaigns.

During his tenure at Harvard, Kerr produced 15 first team All-Ivy League selections, three Ivy League Rookie of the Year choices and two Ivy League Player of the Year picks. In addition, the Crimson led the nation in scoring in 2006 en route to the Ivy League championship.

In addition, Kerr served as the coaching director of the F.C. Greater Boston soccer club from 2002-07. He was the coach of 2008 Duke graduate Michael Videira prior to Videira's highly successful career as a Blue Devil.

While at Duke, Kerr was the national player of the year in 1986 as the Blue Devils went 18-5-1 and captured the school's first national championship. A two-time first team All-ACC and All-America choice, Kerr finished his career with 42 goals and 43 assists for 127 points. Those totals rank fifth, second and third, respectively, all-time at Duke.

Kerr went on to play for the U.S. National Team, where he saw action in 17 matches and tallied two goals from 1984-95.

Following graduation in 1986, Kerr became the first American to play in the English Premier League when he signed on with Portsmouth. He returned to the United States later that year to play with the Washington Stars of the ASL, which was then owned by John Koskinen. A Duke alumnus, the stadium where the Blue Devils play is currently named for the Koskinen family.

Following his season stateside, Kerr went back to Europe, playing in England, Ireland and France. He also spent one season with the Hamilton Steelers of the Canadian Soccer League.

Kerr also played in the Major Soccer League, the United States' professional indoor soccer league of the time. He helped lead the San Diego Sockers to the 1992 title.

From 1996-97, Kerr played in Major League Soccer as a member of the Dallas Burn and New England Revolution. In 1998 and 1999, Kerr was a player and coach for the Boston Bulldogs of the professional A-league.

Kerr has coached at the youth, high school, collegiate and professional levels in both England and the United States. In 1992, he was the top Blue Devil assistant of a squad that reached the national semifinals.

Born March 6, 1965 in Toronto, Canada, Kerr is married to Tracy Kerr, who was a soccer standout at Virginia in the early 1990's. The couple has twins, Cameron John and Alexandra Catherine, and another son, Drew.

Michael Brady begins his 11th season with the Blue Devils. He was promoted to Associate Head Coach in 2010 after serving as the top assistant coach for two seasons.

An outstanding tactician from the sidelines, he has helped head coach John Kerr mentor numerous All-ACC and ACC Players of the Year during his time in Durham, including the 2011 M.A.C Hermann Trophy winner Andrew Wenger, 2014 ACC Midfielder of the Year Sean Davis.

This past season, Brady's vision of the game helped launch the Blue Devils back into the national conversation as Duke returned to the NCAA Tournament. He was crucial in the development of sophomore Brandon Williamson as a playmaker in the center of the field as well as being a mentor to Brian White as he became Duke's 33rd All-American in program history.

Brady helped mold Davis into one of the top center midfielders in the country in 2014. Davis is now a starter in the midfield in Major League Soccer with the New York Red Bulls. The New Jersey native led the team and the ACC in assists in 2014 en route to earning Best XI recognition from Top Drawer Soccer.

Having an influence in all areas of the field, Brady helped the Blue Devils' defense excel in 2012 and 2013 as Duke finished with low goals against averages behind the play of 2013 All-American Sebastien Ibeagha.

In 2012 Duke posted nine shutouts, while allowing just 0.70 goals per game. The 0.70 goals against average was the lowest for a Duke squad since 1987.

With Wenger leading the way and under Brady's watch in 2011, the Blue Devils' offense flourished scoring the most goals since Duke had 50 in 2006. Duke was shut out just three times and had three-plus goals in six contests in 2011.

Brady came to Duke after serving as the women's soccer head coach at American University for eight seasons and assists Kerr in all aspects of the program.

In his tenure at American, Brady led the Eagles to a 72-76-17 record and earned Patriot League Coach of the Year honors in 2007. He led American to an NCAA Tournament appearance and Patriot League Championship in 2002.

Prior to assuming the reins of the women's soccer program at American, Brady spent three years as director of the Premier Soccer Association based in McLean, Va., which develops year-round clinics and summer camps in the Washington, D.C., metropolitan area. Previously, Brady was the head coach at The Potomac School in McLean for four years.

Brady's first coaching stint at the collegiate level came during the 1991 season when he was the head coach of the American women's soccer team. During that season, Brady led the second-year program to a respectable 6-10 record while competing in the challenging Colonial Athletic Association.

As a player at American University, Brady was named the 1985 NCAA Men's Player of the Year by Soccer America and received the Adi Dassler award from adidas as the top collegiate player of the year as he captained the Eagles to the 1985 NCAA Championship game. The three-time NCAA All-America selection finished his illustrious career with school records of 65 goals and 29 assists for 159 career points.

American University retired Brady's No. 14 jersey in 1986 and he was inducted into AU's Athletics Hall of Fame in 1997.

A native of Coventry, England, Brady was a member of the U.S. National team from 1984-1986. He also participated in the National Sports Festival, World University Games and the ISAA Senior Soccer Bowl.

Following his outstanding collegiate career, Brady played professionally for the highly successful Baltimore Blast, a member of the Major Indoor Soccer League, as well as several other professional soccer teams in the United States.

He currently holds his Class "A" coaching license from the United States Soccer Federation (USSF). Brady and his wife, Dori, reside in Cary, N.C., with their son, Nicholas, and daughter, Noelani.

The Blue Devils, after struggling defensively at times in recent seasons, were excellent in 2017 in allowing just 1.05 goals per game, the lowest goals against average since 2013. Under Rich's watch, rookie goalkeeper Will Pulisic anchored the defense to seven shutouts en route to earning All-ACC third team honors. He was the first Duke goalie to earn All-ACC honors since 2012 and the first Blue Devil freshman to land on an All-ACC team since 2009. Pulisic finished the season with a 13-4-3 overall record, a 1.01 goals against average and an ACC-best .761 save percentage.

North Carolina's defense was among the top in the league in 2014, allowing just 0.73 goals per game. In 2015, goalkeeper James Pyle ranked second in the ACC and ninth nationally with an impressive .839 save percentage.

Prior to moving to the Triangle, Rich oversaw game day scouting and video analysis for the Hokies during the 2012 and 2013 campaigns. He also served as the goalkeeper coach, mentoring first team All-ACC keeper Kyle Renfro in 2013. Renfro, under Rich's watch, led the ACC in saves in both seasons and was third and fourth in the league in save percentage those year years, respectively.

Previous to his two seasons in Blacksburg, Rich worked as an assistant coach at Florida International University for the 2011 season. He assisted in most aspects of the program with a specific focus on domestic recruiting.

After graduating from Barry in 2007, Rich spent four years as an assistant coach at his alma mater. He served as the goalkeeper coach for the men's team for four seasons and the women's team for three seasons.

As a student-athlete at Barry, Rich was a captain and a four-year starter in goal for the Buccaneers. An All-Sunshine State Conference pick, Rich notched 28 career wins and eight shutouts during his four seasons. For his career overall, Rich started 48 games for the Buccaneers.

1986 NATIONAL CHAMPIONS

The locals call Tacoma the "City of Destiny." They received no argument from the Duke soccer team in 1986.

The Blue Devils brought home the school's first NCAA team championship, clinching the soccer title with a 1-0 victory over Akron on Dec. 13.

On four previous occasions, athletic teams at Duke had played for national championships and lost, including one in soccer four years prior.

The 1986 triumph erased some of the sting from Duke's 2-1, eight-overtime defeat by Indiana in the 1982 title match and fulfilled a four-year dream of that year's class of 11 seniors to return to the championship game and bring the trophy home.

"Unfinished business" was the way coach John Rennie referred to Duke's title match. "This feels just unbelievable," he added.

Blue Devils Tom Stone and Kelly Weadock claimed the offensive and defensive most valuable player awards in the game. Stone, a junior forward, scored the lone goal at 46:38, and senior sweeper Weadock, starting all 87 games in his Duke career, anchored the Blue Devils' defense to its 12th shutout of the season.

Rennie found it hard to single out players for commendation, however. "If Duke University were to give a degree to this team, then it would be for chemistry," he said. "Our guys had their own magic formula for the last six weeks. Chemistry is what all great teams have."

Although the game was played on the artificial indoor surface of the Tacoma Dome, Duke, 18-5-1, stuck with virtually the same game plan that had carried them to the championship game: attack early and get the ball out of their end quickly.

The quick-striking Blue Devils took only 1:38 of the second half to put the game's only goal on the scoreboard. Robert Probst was fouled near midfield by Akron forward Roderick Scott.

Freshman midfielder Joe Valenti took the long free kick for Duke. He crossed the ball over the head of Akron sweeper Matt Smith to the far post for Carl Williamson, who knocked it back to the near post for Stone.

"It came right to my left leg and I swung away," said Stone, who drilled it high into the open net from seven yards out for his 16th goal of the year, just one off the school record. Half of those goals were game-winners, and Stone credited Rennie for making him a more effective offensive player that year.

"All Coach Rennie has said," "Get up in the box, your chances will come, I promise," Stone said. Four of his goals came in the NCAA playoffs, more than any other Blue Devil.

Both teams concentrated their defenses to stop the opposition's top scorer. Duke used Probst, a freshman stopper, to mark Scott, a sophomore forward who was also a member of the Canadian National Team.

Akron fullback Shaun Docking was assigned to Duke's John Kerr, who, following the championship, was named the recipient of the 1986 Hermann Trophy, given to the nation's top player, and the National Player of the Year Award of the Missouri Athletic Club.

The Zips' Scott was held to two harmless first half shots by Probst, who earned Rennie's praise. "He's done that all year," the coach said. "He was able to shut down Scott for almost a full game. We always assign him to the opposition's most important player. Most of the damage Scott did was out away from the goal. We forced him to lay the ball out to other players, while he couldn't perform his magic."

Added Rennie, "You win with defense. It's like that in any sport."

Call it destiny if you like. The Duke soccer team could then wave their extended index fingers and chant, "We're number one," and know it was true.
